If META-INF foresees that the amount of work corresponding to the Customer's needs exceeds the planned working hours, it is obliged to inform the Customer of the reason for exceeding the timeframe and of the additional working hours required. Thereafter, the Customer either accepts the increase in the number of working hours with the relevant increase in fees, or the parties jointly determine the tasks that may be performed within the estimated amount of working hours, which may result in a reduction in the technical content of the ordered work. The Customer's delay excludes the delay of META-INF. If the Customer fails to remedy the delay within 3 working days, the parties shall jointly agree on a new performance deadline, in which case META-INF shall commence the performance on the next working day on which the Customer has settled its debt. If the Parties do not agree on the new performance deadline within 10 days, or the Customer fails to pay the fee despite the agreement, then META-INF is entitled to terminate present GTC or the Individual Order with immediate effect, and the Parties are obliged to settle accounts with each other in accordance with Section 10.9 of present GTC.

5.11. In addition to the above, in the event of late payment, the Customer may pay to META-INF (under the sole discretion of META-INF) a daily penalty of 1 percent of the Fee specified in the Individual Order after the days being in delay. The remaining parts shall be construed and enforced without regard to partial invalidity. In such a case, the parties shall enter into negotiations in good faith in order to replace the provision with a provision closest to the economic concept of both parties. The same procedure must be followed in the event present GTC or the Individual Order does not regulate an issue.

Annex no. 2.: Availability of technical recommendations of Atlassian

Purpose of present annex

The infrastructure required to run Atlassian products and related apps must in all cases comply with Atlassian's technical recommendations. These technical proposals are given as an example in this Annex. Please note that in addition to the sites listed in this Appendix, many other pages may contain additional specifications, so please fully verify that the system on which you intend to run the Atlassian product or related app is compliant with the developer's requirements before installing the system. We would like to draw your attention to the fact that if the infrastructure is not suitable, there is a possibility that the system you want to run, and the app associated with it will not be suitable for achieving the desired goal.

Once again, we would like to emphasize that the Customer is obliged to ensure that the infrastructure required to run the Atlassian system and related applications always complies with Atlassian's technical recommendations (including, but not limited to memory, network, adequate hard drive speed, etc.) in connection with which or due to the deficiencies of which META-INF shall not be liable in case of possible inoperability or malfunction.

The technical recommendations are only valid if choosing Server or Data Center deployment, while for Cloud deployment Atlassian undertakes to ensure the proper operation of the products, information on which is available on the following pages:
